Lawyer William R. Wilder, representing the East Side Water Front Protective Association, appeared before Judge Patterson resterday in Supreme Court, Chambers, to make permanent a temporary injunction obtained several days ago against the New York and New England Railroad, restraining them from erecting a shed upon pler 36, formerly 46, at the foot of Jefferson street, East River. The railroad company got a permit to erect the shed from the Dock Department, thus gaining trade was leaving this port because of lack of open piers. Two-thirds of the piers below Canal street, he claimed were monopolized by about thirty private corporations and there was danger of all the others falling prey to corporations. There were only three open piers above the bridge, and this was one of them. It had been bridge, and this was one of them. It had been for fifty years the home of the China and East Indian trade. If shedded the pier would become, as all other shedded piers had become, the exclusive property, practically, of the railroad corporation. J. A. Boatwick was President of the railroad. Lawyer Wilder said that the China trade had occasioned the erection of many large warehouses in the immediate vicinity, whose business would be ruined if corporations grabbed these open piers. He rested his case entirely upon the specific provision of the Consolidation act that the pier was to remain open.

rested his case entirely upon the specillo provision of the Consolidation act that the pier was to remain onen.

Lawyer John Cadwalader, for the company, put in the startling defence that the pier in question was exempt from the provisions of the Consolidation act because it had been rebuilt not precisely on the site of the original attructure, and was therefore not the same pier that was referred to in the law. Judge Patterson smilled and got interested, and Mr. Cadwalader went on to explain that the original Pier 46 rotted and became worthless, and last year the Dock Department decided to build another in the neighborhood according to the new dock survey plans. It was to begin forty feet further out in the river at the new bulkhead line, and extend ninety-four feet beyond the eastern line of the old pier. The plan was to build the new pier south of the old one, but, as this was found to crowd a third pier, what they did was to remove old Pier 46 and make the new one overlap the old site. Still ft did not entirely overlap it on the north side, and this fact, together with the original intention not to overlap the old site, constituted. Mr. Cadwalader held, a valid claim that the new pier was not the old pier, and therefore not subject to the legal restrictions upon the old pier.

Mr. Wilder argued that if this claim were subject to the legal restrictions upon the old pier.

Mr. Wilder argued that if this claim were sustained all the thirteen open piers would, as soon as rebuilt, be at once grabbed by cor-porations, and the rights of the people for free and open entrance to the port of New York would be irrevocably lost. Judge Patterson took a barrelful of affidavits and reserved decision.

IUNERAL OF ISAAC BELL, JR. Old ,Trinity |Church Crowded with Friends of the Dead Minister.

The funeral of Isaac Bell, Jr., formerly United States Minister to the Netherlands, drew many well-known people to old Trinity Church yesterday morning. At 11 o'clock, the hour for the opening of the service, the church was filled back to the door, many ladies being present. The casket was borne up to the chancel on the shoulders of the bearers, while directly behind walked the honorary pall bearers wearing broad white sashes across their breasts. They were Thomas Newbold. William Jay, Buchanan Winthrop, James K. Gracie, J. Fred Kernochan, Gardner G. Howland. Herman Oelrichs, William Post. Cornellus Fellows, and Nicholash Fish. The members of the dead man's family and other relatives followed. Edward and Louis V. Bell, his brothers, with their wives; Mr. and Mrs. Isnaa Bell. the aged parents, and the widow with her three little children.

The Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix was assisted in the services by the Rev. George H. Houghton of the Church of the Transfiguration and the Rev. G. S. Baker, the pastor at St. Luke's Hospital. The casket was not opened after the service, but was borne out immediately. On the top of the casket, which was covered with black broaddoth, rested a few simple floral tributes. From the church the funeral party drove directly to Greenwood Cemetery, where the body was interred in the Mott family vault. chancel on the shoulders of the bearers, while proprietor and manager of a waist band factory at 486 North Second street, Williamsburgh, complained yesterday that Andrew Brannigan and Arthur Easton were nul sances about the place. He said:

Short Work Made of these Dudes by the Manager and a Justice,

"I employ girls, and among the young men who flock about the factory all day these two are the most persistent in ashing. They manage somehow or another to keep the girls stiention from their work and so conduct themselves that they are a nuisance."

Brannigan and Easten when arraigned before the Justice promised to abate themselves and keep away from the neighborhood of the factory, and the Justice directed them to appear before him in a week's time and tell him how they were keeping their promise.

Frank Smith, the messenger who put Dr. the green goods men who swindled the Doctor out o $170 last week, was discharged by Justice Kilbreth, in the Yorkville Police Court, yesterday. Dr. Bryant, who had been held at the House of Detention, was allowed to start back to Woodbine.
